Independent Visit to The City Palace Museum, Udaipur for Visitors on the Autism Spectrum

I am going to The City Palace Museum, Udaipur today. The building is more than 450 years old and has a lot to explore!

I can refer and print the Museum's Sensory Guide to prepare for my visit

Sensory Guide of

The City Palace Museum, Udaipur

On reaching the Museum gate, I will book my tickets at the counter. Here I can also inquire about ticket concessions and parking

If my bag is heavy, I will request for it to be stored away at Left Luggage Room, for a comfortable visit

A security guard will check my ticket and may follow Covid protocols. I will be cooperative

The Museum is on a height and I will have to walk a lot. I will follow the signage, and enjoy the beauty of the Palace

Toilets are on the ground floor. I will ask persons wearing a blue-strap ID or follow signage to lead me to it

The person at the information desk will help me with my queries and requirements

I will ask for Museum Trails at the Information Centre, and select from the options available. It will make my visit fun and engaging!

If I need a Guide to show me around, I can look out for persons with orange-strap IDs. At the end of the tour, I will pay the Guide their fees

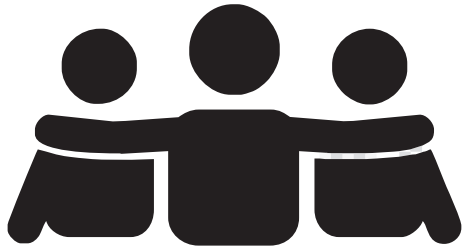

I can take an audio guided tour of the Museum. It is available in English, Français, Deutsch and Español

There will be a 2nd security check at Ganesh Deodi. They will check my ticket, belongings, and frisk me. There may be a small line but I will wait patiently

When inside the Museum

I will stay with my group, family or friends

I will speak quietly and use my inside voice

I will ask questions,
if any, to persons wearing a blue-strap ID

I will not consume anything inside the Museum. If I want to eat,
I will ask to be guided towards a restaurant

When inside the Museum

I will not lean on anything

I will click loads of pictures with the flash button turned off

I will appreciate, but not touch or harm the artwork or site

If I need a quiet space, a break or wish to leave, I will ask or inform the guardian accompanying me

Before I leave I must look out for the Book Store! It has many interesting books

After my visit, I will tell my friends all about it and encourage them to visit too!
